

MGMT 2210 : Project Management

Provides a basic understanding of project management functions and processes. Topics include: team selection and management; project planning, definition, and scheduling of tasks; resource negotiation, allocation, and leveling; project control, monitoring, and reporting; computer tools for project planning and scheduling; managing complex relationships between the project team and other organizations; critical path methodology; and total quality management.

Credits 3