

ALHS 1010: Introduction to Anatomy & Physiology

Provides a study of medical terminology and the basic study of structure and function of the human body. It provides an overview of the functions of each body system and the medical terminology associated with each system. This course is intended for students in non-medical programs and is designed to provide medical terminology and basic knowledge of anatomy and physiology

Credits: 4

Program: Allied Health Sciences